Reach for the Top

• (To Warren Davis). My wife and I wish to thank you for the pleasure Reach for the Top has given us over the past months (seen weekly on CBWT during the winter season). The kindly, pleasant way in which you treated all the contestants appealed to us. We also enjoyed your Warren's Corner (seen on CBWT and CBXT). The interest and enthusiasm is so invigorating to an 86-year-old man.

—F.H.B., Winnipeg.

• (To the producer, Miss Jean Mackay). I am satisfied that Reach for the Top has conveyed to the public an impression of high school students which is in the interests of all concerned. Too often people are very critical of students of high school age because of the behaviour and actions of a few. Your program, I think, has done a good service to the community in general.

It is amazing just how many people have followed Reach for the Top through the season . . . and have expressed the hope that this program, or one similar to it, would be given again next year.

—A.C.M., Winnipeg.

Of Ballads and Bards

• Congratulations on a fine show (Of Ballads and Bards, a recent series on CBC-TV). It is pleasant listening and singers Reg Gibson and Jim Pirie are versatile with a first-class technique.

—R.M.P., Winnipeg.

More Than the Uniform and Cap

• The program, Student Nurse, (Tuesday, June 11, CBC-TV), was an excellent film. Some girls finishing high school think they might like nursing as further education, yet know so little of what the course has to offer besides a starched uniform and pretty cap. May I suggest that the film be repeated at some time more suitable for the students' viewing?

—Mrs. M.M., Winnipeg.

The IFS Program

• To me, I.Q. is the key program of the week, (Sundays, 1:00 p.m., CBC Radio during the past season), one to which I look forward eagerly and few of which I have missed.

On June 16, the intermission departed from its norm. To hear these young people express their thoughts for the future, plans and ambitions is, I believe, even more interesting and enlightening than the usual intermission, fine as that often has been . . . For next year, why not make interviews of the participants the intermission fare?

If I may be facetious, I've dubbed this I.Q. program IFS—Imaginative, Fascinating, Stimulating.

—R.D., Winnipeg.

Pleasant Surprise

• The surprise package which you handed all CBC viewers (Sunday, June 23) when Song of the Forest was shown in place of the scheduled Music and Dance of the Argentine was a real treat. The filming was masterfully done, and the accompanying narration with its comedy overtones provided many a chuckle . . . preceded as it was with The Nature of Things, and the account of spiders, which I found most fascinating, your programming meant a treasure of nature lore. Thank you for a wonderful Sunday afternoon's viewing.

—Miss A.C., Winnipeg

Opinion of a New Subscriber

• With pleasure we have received the first copies of the CBC Times. It makes watching TV much more interesting.

We do as a rule enjoy all CBC programs, some more, some less. Personally I do think that Playdate and Festival are very good, but shows like Beverly Hillbillies, Perry Mason and Empire are family favourites. We do hope that Reflections will come back, and we make every effort to see Kingfisher Cove (Sundays on CBC-TV). But it goes beyond us — and according to comments I have heard on CJDC's Open Line, most people around here — how the CBC can keep a second-rate show like Juliette on a Saturday night. . . . Of course, it is impossible to please everyone, so I guess we will have to bear it.

M.V., Dawson Creek, B.C.

No Vacation for Gordie

While many other stars of the regular-season television shows head for their favourite resorts, Gordie Tapp, host of Country Hoedown, gets himself involved in a little more work. On Front and Centre Wednesdays on CBC-TV, he introduces well-known Canadian entertainers who in turn introduce newcomers to the field. And on CBC Radio, he is heard on two shows—What's On Tapp?, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, at 1:30 p.m., and Country Holiday, Tuesdays at 9:00 p.m.

VARIED MUSICAL tastes are served with CBC Radio's recently inaugurated all-night broadcasting. Starting at what used to be sign-off time for each station, a continuous program of music is being broadcast each night except one during the week, when certain transmitters are shut down for maintenance (CBK is off Sunday nights, CBW closes down Tuesday nights, and CBX is off Saturday nights).

Musical programming each Wednesday night (actually, the early hours of Thursday) will be mainly serious. The first two hours of programming in the late-hour slot on Friday and Saturday nights will be dance music, to enliven any parties that might be in progress. On other nights, the music will be a mixture of light classical, variety, music from the shows, and something for the jazz connoisseur.

The all-night broadcasting is undertaken as part of the Emergency Broadcasting Plan, so that instructions and information can be broadcast to the public should any national emergency arise. During the one night each week that each transmitter is shut down, the network will be audited by technicians and should an important message be broadcast, the transmitter will be turned on.

A FORMER MEMBER OF the Coldstream Guards band and the BBC Symphony Orchestra is heard Sunday at 12 noon on CBC Radio's Recital in Miniature. Ernest Dalwood, now principal clarinetist with the Edmonton Symphony Orchestra, performs works by Debussy, Arnold and Howland, accompanied by pianist Hope Metzies.

Mr. Dalwood served with the band of the Coldstream Guards for 12 years, the last five as solo clarinetist, and for five years played with the BBC Symphony Orchestra, as well as with many of the leading orchestras in England. Continuing his military affiliation in Canada, he is conductor of the 418 Wing Band (RCAF Reserve) in Edmonton, as well as leading his own salon orchestra which has many engagements booked for the next few months in Edmonton.

His accompanist, Hope Metzies, is a well-known Edmonton musician who, as well as playing the piano, is a member of the string section of the Edmonton Symphony Orchestra.

VANCOUVER humorist - writer - researcher Dave Brock has a busy summer ahead of him. He has been doing research and writing scripts for some programs in the Discovery series (Sunday evenings on CBC-TV), will be performing the same function for the popular variety series Some of Those Days (also Sunday evenings), and is a script-writer for the radio series Pacific Holiday (alternate Fridays, 9 p.m., radio). Brock has worked at one time or another for every Vancouver newspaper and is now a freelance writer. He claims to have been one of the few men living ever to have been expelled from the Boy Scouts.

CBC Wednesday Night: Documentary,

Canadian String Quartet and Skalkottas' Music

J. D. Hamilton

A DOCUMENTARY broadcast and two programs of music make up the major offerings on this week's CBC Wednesday Night, July 24, on radio. The evening's fare will begin at 8:05, following James Bannerman's introduction, with a program by the Canadian String Quartet, assisted by guest artist Walter Susskind as pianist; it will be followed, at 9:00, by a documentary dealing with the mind of the southern U.S., and at 10:30 a half-hour program of music by Greek composer Nikos Skalkottas will be presented.

Though Walter Susskind is best known as an orchestral conductor, having served in that capacity with many of the world's leading ensembles and currently as musical director of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, he is also an accomplished pianist, and has won wide acclaim for his recitals, his work as an accompanist, and his appearances as piano soloist with major orchestras. In Wednesday's program, Czech-born Susskind will be heard with the Quartet in a work by one of his favourite composers (and fellow countrymen): Antonin Dvorak's Quintet in A major, opus 81.

The documentary program to be heard at 9:00 p.m. is entitled The Southern Moderates, and has been prepared by broadcaster John David Hamilton and Ann Phelps. It is the result of a recent trip by Hamilton through the southern U.S.—Georgia, Alabama, Louisiana and Mississippi—during which he interviewed many members of that part of southern society which is considered moderate in its thinking on integration and segregation. ###### Close-Up

A special hour-long program, pre-empting Discovery.

The story behind the labour dispute between the Seafarers' International Union and the Canadian Great Lakes grain carrier Howard L. Shaw is presented. The Shaw has been anchored in Chicago since April 22 because longshoremen of the International Longshoremen's Association, an SIU affiliate, have refused to load the boat. Reason given is that the Shaw is manned by non-union members. The Shaw's crew are members of the Canadian Maritimes Union, formed in 1961 by Michael Sheehan, former associate of Hal Banks of the SIU.

Close-Up story editor George Ronald interviews longshoremen of the I.L.A. captain and crew members of the Shaw,

RADIO

10:30 p.m.—Late Night Theatre

Night Class. A play by Corinne and Desmond Scott about a scrubwoman whose ambition is to be a typist. Produced by Gus Kristjanson.

ALTHOUGH HE is descended from a most famous shop-steward-on-a-grand-scale, Benjamin Disraeli, actor Peter Sellers didn't rely on that association to cue him for his best performance to date, as Fred Kite, the solemn-faced, pompous, pathetic trade-union officer in the film I'm All Right, Jack. (It will be seen on CBC-TV in the Great Movies series on Saturday, July 20. The series has been extended a half-hour to become a two-hour feature.)

Unlikely as organized labour and management industry might appear as satire material, the Boulting Brothers, who wrote and directed I'm All Right, Jack, used it as background for one of the liveliest and funniest comedies. So biting and witty is their fun-poking that some trade unions complained—that the film caricatured the bosses was good for a laugh in any boardroom, but Sellers' priggish, monstrously arrogant and inept shop steward was a bit too close to home for some Leftist members of the audience, though for many people the joke went down so well that they had to go back to see the film again. His performance won Sellers a British academy award as actor of the year.

All through the film Sellers is in dead earnest, surrounded by clowns. They include Ian Carmichael, playing a naive gentleman who is trying to find a place for himself in the business world. After a few bumbling experiences he settles down in a missile-making plant and quickly causes no end of trouble, ending in a strike. The plant is headed by Dennis Price, a suave, arch-conner who is joined in an extremely shady international plot with Richard Attenborough, a dapper rascal with a moustache, and Marne Maitland, a slippery Mohammedan. Heading the labour-relations department at the plant is none other than Terry-Thomas, as bucktoothed, brash and foxy as ever. There are superb performances by Irene Handl as Peter Sellers' wife, and Liz Fraser as his brainless, sexy daughter. Margaret Rutherford appears as a many-chinned, determined Aunt Dolly. Miles Mallison, still going strong in his mid-seventies, gives an amusing performance as a nudist, and there are many other familiar names in the cast.

It is when Sellers stomps, stiff-legged, into the action as self-important as a stuffed-shirt can be, that the film lifts magically and sails along with side-splitting hilarity. But it is difficult to pinpoint exactly what it is about his performance that accomplishes this—it's so subtle that analysis only makes it more elusive. It must be seen to be appreciated, and the second time is even better than the first viewing. Always his highly observant acting reflects his own view of the world and himself—wryly hard-headed and often biting. Sellers' toy-soldier walk, one of the most effective parts of his characterization, wasn't a practised one. He says he didn't give it a thought until he strode in front of the cameras. Then, he recalls, he "knew intuitively that Kite was just a head (Please turn to page 17)

The Man Who Removed BOREDOM from VACATIONS

Billy Butlin's vacation camps have bettered the lot of the common man in Britain. SOUNDINGS tells about this former Canadian and his business, Thursday night on CBC Radio

FOR HUNDREDS of thousands of Britons the days are gone forever when the holidaying family awoke to yet another day in a seaside boarding-house smelling of decades of cabbage and kippers, and kept the maid waiting crossly to do their rooms because they couldn't be bothered getting up. After a heavy, tasteless breakfast, they took the landlady's broad hint to be out of the house by 10 o'clock, and then sloshed dismally along the promenade in slickers while the kids whined, the parents snapped at one another, and Gran chewed relentlessly on past injustices.

The man responsible for banishing scenes like that is "jolly old Billy Butlin, the holiday king," whose career started with a hoopla-stall at the Canadian National Exhibition. In Britain and the Caribbean he has built a roaring enterprise worth millions by liberating the masses from the bothersome annual chore of making a decision about how to spend their fortnight away from the grindstone. Come rain or shine, he has guaranteed them a gay, carefree, packaged vacation, every minute filled with activity from wakey-wakey to sleep tight.

Butlin's happy holiday camps are probably the least lonely places in the world. Thursday night, July 25, at 8:30, CBC Radio's Soundings finds out why in a program prepared by Jim and Marguerite Steele, Canadian freelancers who now live in Britain. They talked to men and women who run one of the Butlin camps, and to some of those who go there for their holidays.

For under $50 a week (considerably less in the off-seasons) Butlin puts a lavish summer holiday within the grasp of the average worker. It's a one-class operation. No one gets more or pays more. The smallest camp can cater to 3,800, the largest takes more than twice that number. (Please turn to page 21)

SCIENTISTS FROM many different parts of the world are converging on Canada this month, to be at the focal point of a rare natural phenomenon. Actually, the event is taking place many thousands of miles out in space, but, as it happens, parts of Canada provide the best view.

The phenomenon is, of course, the total eclipse of the sun, which will occur on the afternoon of Saturday, July 20. CBC Television has made extensive preparations to cover the event for viewers all across the country. Details of this coverage will be found below in this article.

The eclipse has been looked forward to by the world's astronomers with almost the same eagerness that a young boy displays when awaiting the arrival of a circus in town. And no wonder: A total eclipse occurs in any given part of the world only once every thousand years, and when it comes, it enables scientists to make observations that are impossible at other times. Since 1920, four eclipses have been visible in some part of Canada or other, and from now until 2,025 only five total eclipses will be visible from any point in North America.

An eclipse occurs when the moon moves between the sun and the earth, blocking off the sun's rays to a certain area of the earth's surface. The area in which the sun is blocked out completely is called the umbra (shadow), and those regions in which partial blockage occurs are in the penumbra. Depending on one's location on earth, one may see a total eclipse, in which the moon completely covers the sun's disc, a partial eclipse, or no eclipse at all. The path traced by the moon's shadow is the result of the combined motions of the moon around the earth, the earth around the sun, and the rotation of the earth on its axis.

On July 20, the total eclipse will be visible in a 50- to 60-mile belt running across North America, following an elliptical path across Alaska, the Yukon, the Northwest Territories, cutting across the northwest corner of Saskatchewan and down through northern Manitoba and Ontario, then on through Quebec, on a line about equidistant between Montreal and Quebec City then on out through Maine and into the Atlantic. The greater the distance between this shadow-path and the observer, the less eclipse he will see.

In Ottawa, the ratio goes down to about 95 per cent, in Toronto, 90; in Virginia there will be about 75 per cent totality, and in Florida about 50 per cent. The southern limit at which any part of the eclipse will be visible is a line running a few hundred miles south of Mexico City. The northern limit line runs beyond the north pole.

Most of the shadow path travels over very sparsely-settled or wilderness territory. Selkirk in the Yukon, Stony Rapids, Sask., and Three Rivers, Que., however, are almost centrally located in the umbra's path. Across northern Ontario, between Moosonee and Kapuskasing, totality will occur about 4:28 p.m. CDT. Further east, at Three Rivers, it will be a few minutes later, at 4:39. Duration of totality at given points varies from one minute, 40 seconds over the western part of the continent to only 52 seconds as the track goes out into the Atlantic.

There is a vast difference between what can be seen when the eclipse is total and what is visible with even 99 per cent eclipse. In the latter case a thin crescent of the brilliant disc of the sun is still exposed, and all the spectacular elements of totality are missing. Inside the path of the umbra, completely within the moon's shadow, there is no direct illumination from the sun at all, and its beautiful corona, the sun's silver-white halo, shines out in delicate

CBC WEDNESDAY NIGHT

moderates, who regard themselves as the main hope for stability in the south, are in the main professional people and businessmen, highly respected in their communities, who have a large stake in and concern for the future of the south. Their views on the question of racial equality may surprise some who believe the south to be populated entirely with rabid segregationists.

Hamilton recorded interviews with dozens of people during his trip, and several hours of recorded material have been edited down to make the hour-long program to be heard this week. One curious sidelight to the program is the fact that Hamilton had no intention of preparing a radio program on the subject of integration when he set out on his trip. But the topic cropped up so persistently as he travelled across the States that, as a professional broadcaster, he found he couldn't ignore it, so began recording comments as he went along.

The work of Greek composer Nikos Skalkottas, who died 14 years ago at the age of 45, has until recently been little known, even in his native country. He spent most of his maturity as an orchestral violinist, and the greater part of his output was neither performed nor published during his lifetime. He was an avid student of Greek folk music, and was a composition pupil of two famous composers: Kurt Weill, from whom he inherited a love of dance rhythms, old and new; and Arnold Schoenberg, whose serial technique of composition Skalkottas adopted in most of his works. The resulting combination is an interesting one: echoes of ancient Greek songs, overlaid with the rhythms of modern dances, and expressed in the musical language of the 12-tone school. Not all of his works reflect the teachings of Schoenberg, for Skalkottas also made colourful, straightforward settings of Greek folk dances. Because of his research into Greek traditional music, and his absorption of that music into his orchestral works, he has been spoken of as "the Greek Bartok." British critic Leo Black has made what is perhaps a closer parallel: "Skalkottas' acridly sensuous music," he wrote, "suggests Lawrence Durrell's vivid Mediterranean world, turned to sound."

Toughest Man In a Rough Sport

DICK (BULLDOG) BROWER, of Wilmington, Del., is not everyone's idea of a gentleman. He never pretends he is.

The Bulldog, one of the wrestling fraternity's most ugly, nasty, vicious characters—and therefore one of those most in demand for bouts—is always cast in the role of a "villain" of the ring. He lives up to the part remarkably well, at least when he's in the glare of overhead lights. Whereas another well-known grapple-and-groan artist, Gene Kiniski, can express poetic ecstasy about his work ("It's a higher form of expression than any form of music, with the exception of composition"), Brower is more basic, perhaps more honest, and certainly less raffiné than Kiniski in assessing his interest in wrestling: "I get pleasure," says Bulldog, "out of beating up another man."

A lot of people, it appears, also get pleasure from watching a man get beaten up, for attendance at wrestling matches and estimates of television-watching devotees indicate high numbers of wrestling fans.

Of course, the villain doesn't always get beaten. Especially if his name is Dick Brower. The Bulldog is a force to be reckoned with, and he doesn't take things lying down; not, at least, lying down for the count of three. He is, by his own modest admission, one of the greatest wrestlers of all time, and is certainly (again in his own words) "the best wrestler of the decade." His opinion may be disputed by a number of brawny brutes in the profession, but then, they can settle their differences of opinion in the ring. That's what it's there for.

Brower may be mean and punishing when he's taking part in an "exhibition of skill and science," which is the euphemistic phrase employed these days to describe a wrestling match, but what is he like outside the ring, or off-camera? Is he really as rough as he seems to be, or does he, perhaps, raise African violets and tend to a clutch of cuddly kittens (of the four-legged variety) when he's at home? This week, CBC-TV's 20/20 series gives the viewer an opportunity to look into the private and professional lives of Bulldog Brower. Film shot by a 20/20 crew which followed Brower around for a few days is combined with tape-recorded comments by Brower himself, to make up a half-hour program that illuminates some aspects of the wrestling game. Produced in Toronto by Dick Knowles, the program will be shown on Sunday, July 20.

The Neutral Corner. A "bomber" tries to intimidate Ken Madison when he is hired to protect prizefighter Bongo Macklin.

Italian-Canadians On 'Temps Present'

IN THE north-eastern part of Montreal there's an old-established Italian quarter, a veritable Little Italy, where the majority of Montreal's 150,000 Italians live. The shops, food, signs, restaurants are all Italian. The area has its own Italian-language newspapers, and one of the streets has been officially re-named Dante St.

The residents of Little Italy have their own customs, and they try to retain their own way of life as far as possible. In the community, which contains about one-third of Canada's Italian population, there is much to remind the newly-arrived immigrant of his former home. Amid the surroundings of closely-spaced homes and open-air market-places, so different from the housing developments and sleek supermarkets of other parts of town, he enjoys friendly, casual conversations with friends and acquaintances on warm summer nights.

Unemployment and under-employment are problems among the men of the district, many of whom were poor farmers and labourers, mostly from the parched lands of central Italy, before they came to Canada. Now they work mainly as masons, builders and painters. There isn't much time for relaxation or leisure, and their pastimes are fairly simple: the friendly rivalry of bocce, the distinctly Italian form of lawn bowling; the lightning-quick contest of la morra, in which a player tries to guess the number of fingers an opponent will show in a rapid succession of hand movements (a game may last for hours, and it costs literally nothing to play); and, once in a while, the thrilling excitement and escape valve of soccer, ostensibly a spectator sport, but one in which the spectators sometimes become more active than the players on the field. A soccer match can be a major social occasion, a chance to let off steam and live it up with exuberant spirits.

On this week's edition of the series Temps Present, to be seen Monday, July 22, CBC-TV will show a glimpse of life in Montreal's Little Italy. The program, entitled One Sunday in Canada, is one of 11 films about Canada produced by the French-language unit of the National Film Board and shown earlier in French versions on CBC's French-language TV network.

Tokyo Getting Ready For 1964 Olympics

EVER SINCE it was decided, in 1959, that the 1964 Olympic Games would be held in Tokyo, plans and construction on a tremendous scale have been underway there. Lately they've taken an extra sprint in order to meet the all-too-swiftly-approaching deadline. On Monday night, July 22, CBC-TV's Telescope goes to Japan to see how preparations are getting on, and relates the pre-Olympic activity in Tokyo with the Canadian training program for the games.

Host Fletcher Markle will talk with the Japanese head of the organizing committee for the fall Olympics, who is looking forward to welcoming the Canadian athletes, and, closer to home, talks to Canadian track stars Bruce Kidd, Bill Crothers and Abigail Hoffman, and Canadian track coach Fred Foot. They tell what the Olympic Games mean to an athlete, consider the original purpose of the Games, and whether the Olympics have deteriorated into a Cold War gambit or are still a true competition between individuals.

The Japanese and members of the Olympic committee have many large problems to solve before the Games take place. One is a water shortage in Tokyo. Another is a money shortage — it will take $20 million to finance the two-week Games in October. Accommodation for the 9,000 athletes, the expected 30,000 special visitors, the regular 250,000 late-summer visitors, and the thousands of Japanese who will throng in from outside Tokyo to add to the 10½ million residents, is causing many headaches. If bed-counters are to be trusted, by the fall of 1964 Tokyo will have rooms for only 10,000 visitors, including new hotels under construction or planned.

Traffic in Tokyo has long been a problem. The streets seem to follow no pattern, are very narrow and winding, and even native taxi-drivers get lost. When the Asian Games were held there five years ago, some officials and thousands of spectators who left their hotels and homes hours before the opening ceremonies failed to reach them in time.

The percentage of road-space in the city is dreadfully small compared with other large cities. Berlin and Boston have 26 per cent of their areas covered by roads, New York and Vienna have 36 per cent, while Tokyo has only 9.2 per cent. Reconstruction of Tokyo highways has been overdue for long, and the Olympics are helping to speed it up.

Vacation Time

From Winnipeg, with host George Knight. Dave Ruskin, producer.

Who's Who at the Zoo. At Assiniboine Park Zoo, we see camels and dromedaries. Georges LaFleche sings "Drive a Dromedary", and tells the story of the cross-country camel rally.

A Camping Holiday. Early morning at the campsite on the Red River. Per Holting tries to shave, but the continuous interruptions from the four boys—Jeff Manishen, Paul Buckowsky, David Parasz, and Geoffrey Ireland—make it hard going. The boys also try their hand at cooking porridge for breakfast.

Playground Players. In Edmonton, Shirley Burnham, Judy Unwin, Philip Silver, Victor Sutton, and John Madill present their dramatization of Three Billy Goats Gruff.

CBXT—Gateway

Farm Focus. Farm commentators Al Richardson and Dick Bocking with a feature on 4H activities at the Edmonton Exhibition—the champion parade of livestock, and the six heavy-horse teams.

CBXT—Surfside 6

Power of Suggestion. This week's episode opens with Dave Thorne observing the terror of a beautiful medium as she does her act with a hypnotist.

My Three Sons

Sudsy advises Chip that fathers are a pushover, and it's only the mothers who always say no.

Front and Centre

Urbane host Gordie Tapp introduces the Billy Van Four—the Canadian singing group—and magician Robert Downey.

Ben Casey

He Thought He Saw An Albatross. A hospital psychiatrist, obsessed with a method of treatment for a woman patient, resists Dr. Casey's conclusion that surgery is the answer to the woman's problem.

Explorations

The first of two programs devoted to the composer Chopin, prepared by Ronald Hambleton. The program deals mainly with the artist's life in Paris. Jacques Abram illustrates at the piano some of the composer's work, created during this period.

and torso set on a pair of mechanical legs". Sellers thinks of Kite as a tragic figure. Perhaps that is why, ridiculous and priggish as Kite is, the audience invariably feels sorry for him at the end of the film.

Before the film was made, Sellers studied television newsreels showing shop stewards in action, and meetings were arranged for him with several shop stewards, whose remarks were tape-recorded for him to play back again and again until he felt he knew exactly how Fred Kite would sound and act. Sellers laid considerable stress on Kite's home life in moulding his character. "It was tragic—his life began and ended at the factory. He would be worshipped by his own little group of men, but his wife would be sick of the whole business. One has seen these types around, on buses and so on, and evading questions on television. Their reactions under fire are amusing."

Sellers says he has "never tried consciously to be funny. I'm afraid it wouldn't come off. I am aware of my limitations. I don't want to get into heavy drama because I don't think I have any business there." He says he prefers the "gentle visual joke". He doesn't like broad comedy. He's a great admirer of Jacques Tati, but thinks his own humour is in the tradition of Lear and Stephen Leacock.

He feels that he lacks personality. "I seem to be without the confidence to hold people's attention. When I start talking, people expect me to come out with clever and brilliant things. After about 10 sentences I see their interest waning. I don't have anything clever or brilliant to say. I'm only as good as my material. If I can't remember what somebody else said on a particular subject, I find I've got nothing to say. I think what I'm going to have to do is to get an act together. Not to do on the stage, but for social occasions."

He once tried his hand at directing a holiday camp, but gave it up in desperation. Small-talk with winks, rib-digging, and a sleeveful (Please turn to page 19)

The Billy Van Four take their rightful place in the spotlight on Wednesday's Front and Centre show. Magician Robert Downie also appears.

Announcer Jim Mitchell appears with chef Denny Ransom Thursday on CBXT's Gateway. They demonstrate techniques for back-yard barbecuing.

ing father was musical director for one of the companies — he played for Talullah Bankhead when she was in cabaret. When the revues left the water tanks for dry land, Sellers' mother played in some of their sketches — that's where she met his father. Sellers was carried on stage when two days old. He didn't act as a child, but travelled with his parents, lived in digs, and grew to hate the smell of greasepaint.

He broke into showbusiness in his early teens, playing drums, uke and piano, then joined the RAF as an armourer-assistant in the Second World War, took the entertainer's route via ENSA and the Gang Show, later tried radio, joined the Goon Show when it began in 1951, branched into films a few years later, and slowly worked his way up to the success of I'm All Right, Jack. So far, Sellers has avoided taking the short-but-fatal step across the border between characterization and caricature.

His latest film is Heavens Above. Like I'm All Right, Jack, it's a satirical comedy made by the Boulting Brothers. Sellers plays the Reverend Mr. Smallwood, a dedicated Christian whose sole aim is to follow the teachings of the New Testament to the very letter, with no compromise or deviations. When, through a dreadful mixup, he takes over the parish of Orbiston Parva, he tries to make it a paradise on earth. Of course he fails, the whole town turns against him, and he mutters in bewilderment: "What you want I can't give you, what you need you don't want."

Sellers is keen on the Boultings' casual approach to comedy. They move in on a comedy scene with what he calls "loose ideas", so that the performers can make their own contributions, and in Sellers' case, these are usually subtle little shadings that can lift a scene from mediocrity to brilliance in seconds. He has commissioned John Mortimer, a leading British dramatist, to prepare a film script from Robert Graves' novel, I Claudius, in which Sellers will play the title role.

of jokes for every occasion is not in his line. But with a script in his hand or his mind, he can become one of the funniest men alive. He says he just gets inside the personality of the character he wants to play, looks around for inspiration, and plays it as it comes. This, of course, is real acting, for it is easy enough to go on stage or before the cameras and be yourself. Sellers never is. In fact, he isn't sure about who Sellers really is.

He has mastered at least 20 British dialects alone, including 10 London accents (two Cockneys), and when he returned from a quick trip to New York some time ago, he had picked up an authentic Madison Avenue way of speaking. It's so easy for him to mimic that he often slips into the accent of the person he's speaking to, or even of someone he is thinking about, without realizing he has done so — which has disconcerted more than one acquaintance. Sometimes, just for the heck of it, he'll answer the telephone in the voice of someone his caller would least expect to hear at the other end of the line.

Of course his repertoire of accents includes several samples of Jewish dialects, for his mother is Jewish, and Sellers thinks of himself as Jewish, though an unorthodox one, for he was educated in a Roman Catholic school. His great-great-grandfather was Daniel Mendoza, the famous pugilist, and relatives by the score have been in showbusiness, including his maternal grandmother, known as Ma Ray, who took the first revues to England, one of them displaying girls eating bananas under water in a large tank. Eight of his uncles managed the theatres his grandmother owned, and his piano-play-

Many guests return to the same camp year after year. In 1960 Fred and Doris Blackman of Edgeware, Middlesex, celebrated their 100th Butlin holiday by taking their whole family (35) to camp with them.

Butlin's margin of profit per customer is small, and he actually loses money on his less-than-half-price charges for child guests. But that's one of the secrets of his success. "I started out by trying to give people what they want, like prizes in a hoopla game," he says. "So what do they want? People want to feel someone is really trying to do something for them. People get bored, so I try to have as many things as possible for them to do. And, y'know, I've found out that if it's something I'd like to do myself, everybody else likes doing it, too. I guess my tastes are the ordinary man's tastes because I'm an ordinary man.

"Then there's the fact that people don't like a lot of experimenting in food in this country. They don't like mixed-up dishes like shepherd's pie. Steak and two veg.'s what they prefer. When the Continentals come to my camps, we might put a little more grease in the food, that's all. People want something laid on a little better and a little different from their own home town. See, you keep things simple and at the same time think of simple things."

Like gaily painted chalets, centrally heated, for his customers to sleep in, private baths, large lounges, fountains, oversized heated swimming pools indoors and out, roller-skating rinks, putting greens, softly lit bars, several ballrooms for young and old, complete with orchestras, sing-songs, sports of all kinds, classes in anything from tennis to dancing, calisthenics, rides for the kiddies, movies, church services... Butlin caters to all tastes, and if there's a modest way of doing so, he hasn't heard of it. The scale is lavish and it's all included in the packaged deal.

Loudspeakers splash gay music into every chalet early in the morning and a cheery voice exhorts guests to "Roll out! The time is a quarter to eight, it's a nice day, and there's lots of fun and games awaiting you!" After that it's non-stop for Mum, Dad and the kids all day. Substantial meals in large, attractive dining halls supply the energy to keep guests hopping. (In each dining-room one table at every meal wins a bottle of champagne.)

Separate children's dining-rooms, baby-sitters and nurseries leave parents free to enjoy themselves.

Red-blazered Butlin hosts and hostesses circulate smilingly

Lillian Roth

Victory over Alcoholism

LILLIAN ROTH, who was a child star at five, was the glamorous, gay, and beautiful toast of Broadway and Hollywood before she was 20. She drove in a custom-made cabriolet with 14-carat gold handles and a French ivory lacewood bar in the back, and spent more on clothes in a week than most women make in a year. And she rushed headlong into ruin. For 16 years she was a drunk on the edge of insanity. Out of shame and utter hopelessness, she came back, to become an important dramatic actress of depth and understanding.

When she was in Toronto in February, starring in I Can Get It For You Wholesale, Bill McNeil, host of CBC Radio's Assignment, went backstage to visit her. He found a rather plumpish, blonde woman with beautiful dark drawn eyes and a clear complexion and a flashing dimple—an amusing, vibrantly outgoing woman with a throaty voice. She bubbles with energy, anxious to be on the go, and sometimes makes those around her feel decidedly lazy. "I seldom get three hours of sleep a night, but I've never taken a sleeping pill and I just don't worry about it," she says. "I take advantage of the night hours. I listen to the radio, watch the late-late shows on TV or write."

She told McNeil about her experiences with Alcoholics Anonymous, her frustration and backsliding, and described the sort of life she leads today. This moving human-interest story was recorded and will be heard on CBC Radio this Sunday, July 21, at 5:30 p.m.. It is illustrated with recordings of some of Miss Roth's songs which she made at the height of her career, and it includes comments by Dr. Gordon Bell of the Bell Clinic in North Toronto, where alcoholics are treated. Production is by Dita Scholz.

Miss Roth told of her star-studded, youthful career and its collapse, in a devastatingly frank and frequently shocking book titled I'll Cry Tomorrow, published by Frederick Fell in the U.S. and in Canada by George J. McLeod, Ltd., Toronto. "For 16 years I existed in a nightmare world, one which many enter but not many leave. That one can come back, that there is a way out, is the sum and substance of my book," she says. It was made into a movie starring Susan Hayward.

In 1958 Miss Roth wrote another book, Beyond My Worth, which describes what happened after she gave up drinking two quarts of whisky a day and began the "drying-out" process, reveals some of her philosophies, and covers the period of the making of the movie and her comeback in nightclubs and television.

Miss Roth says, "I'm a little shy about discussing my alcoholism. People get the impression that you must be a saint or a martyr or something. But I will say it gives me compassion for people who have that problem and I see the way they suffer. It is so easy for two down people to help each other. Losing resentment is the best way to fight alcoholism. It's the most important way to get well. You can't get ahead if you have resentment. It's a form of ego to hold onto a personality complex."

"Considering everything," she adds, "life has been good to me. I have no complaints, really."

'Matinee' From Vancouver and Whitehorse, Y.T.

WHILE PAT PATTERSON, hostess of radio's Trans-Canada Matinee, is on holiday the last week in July and the first week in August, the program will originate in Vancouver, Monday to Friday, July 22 to 26, and in Whitehorse (for the first time), on August 1 and 2, at 2:03 p.m. (2:33 p.m. on CBX). The program is pre-empted on July 29 and 30 for broadcasts from the Couchiching Conference. Hostesses will be Marjorie Gage in Vancouver and Helen Horback in Whitehorse.

Mrs. Gage is a writer-broadcaster who is no stranger to Matinee audiences. Before moving to Vancouver (she works at CKNW, New Westminster), Marjorie Gage was CBC morning commentator in Winnipeg.

During the Vancouver origination of the program, the music will be live on Part 2 of the show, which begins at 2:30 p.m. (3:00 on CBX). On Monday, Wednesday and Friday it will be provided by Bud Spencer, a folk singer with a large B.C. repertoire, who accompanies himself on the guitar. On Tuesday and Thursday listeners will hear Irene Rosenberg, who is well-known through North America as a concert pianist. A New Yorker by birth, Miss Rosenberg has been playing the piano since early childhood, and received her first formal musical education at the Juilliard School. She is the wife of Gideon Grau, Concert Master of the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra.

Helen Horback, Matinee hostess at Whitehorse, is the CBC morning commentator there. She first visited Whitehorse in 1946 on a job for the Canadian Army. She left the following year, worked in Vancouver and Victoria, and then returned to Whitehorse in 1954. She has travelled widely in the Yukon by car, bush plane, oil tanker, helicopter, army supply-truck, and on foot. She and her photographer husband combine their talents on trips for story and picture material.

Matinee producer Andrew Simon will travel west with the program. In addition to many interesting features from the west and north, the show will continue to include news commentaries and book readings. News commentators will be Anne Francis of Ottawa on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and Dian Cohen of Montreal on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The readings will be from Karen, by Marie Killilea.

through the camp to keep everybody mixing. There are contests galore to choose the Butlin Holiday Princess, Most Glamorous Grandmother, Girl With the Most Beautiful Hair, Camper With the Knoggiest Knees, Miss She, Mother and Child, Smartest Boy, Bonniest Baby, Girl With the Best-Cared-For Complexion, and many dance, sports and amateur talent competitions.

Romance blossoms often at Butlin camps—Butlin gets about 500 invitations a year to weddings of boys and girls who met or became engaged at his camps. And he receives thousands of letters from satisfied customers who learned to banish dull care and wave goodbye to responsibilities and inhibitions at Butlin's. But don't get him wrong. While Butlin makes his guests believe they're living it up and cutting loose from convention, the bounds of propriety are well defined in all Butlin camps, and a nice balance is maintained between licence and conformity.

The brains behind this highly profitable enterprise belong to a short, stocky, bluff man just over 60, with an easy manner and a big smile. Butlin was born in South Africa, spent his boyhood in Canada, and now speaks with an accent flavoured with Canadian, Cockney and West Country. He makes a point of dropping his "h's" frequently as a sort of trademark.

Butlin's family moved to Toronto from Capetown in 1910. When his father died he went to work at 14 in Eaton's advertising department to support the family. At 15 he joined the Canadian Army as a drummer-boy and was sent overseas. What he saw of England made him want to go back after the war.

When a midway thief at the CNE ran off with the hoopla-stall in which Butlin had invested his savings, he borrowed $30 from his mother, took a cattle-boat to England, and walked the 159 miles from Liverpool to Bristol to look up an uncle who was with a travelling fair. The uncle gave him a job, and when Billy had saved 30 shillings he bought an old hoopla stand and went into business for himself. His theory that "large turnover with small profits adds up to big profits," worked well. Within three years he had 12 employees and owned his own amusement park.

At Skegness one sodden July afternoon he noticed an English family looking very woebegone because the weather had spoiled their holiday and they had nothing to do or see. That gave him an idea—and it has made him millions. "Well, of course, if you want a quiet time . . ." he says to those who think his camps are like Labor Day at the CNE. "But what's the use of going on a mountain by yourself so that you get claustrophobia from hearing a footstep on the next mountain? You want to go and mix with ordinary people—enjoy yourself and get some good food." And when it rains, it's always fine at Butlin's.

Keeping Up With Record Releases

WITH THE enormous increase, over the last decade, in the numbers of phonograph recordings issued, it has become impossible for the individual to acquaint himself with every new release by every record company. Where formerly there were half-a-dozen large companies and a few more small, specialized firms on the fringes of the business, today the total of recording companies has reached the almost unbelievable number of 733.

To fill the demand for information about new recordings, particularly in the classical field, new magazines have sprung up dealing exclusively with record reviews and listings, while other magazines and newspapers regularly devote space to impartial assessments of newly issued discs. Radio, too, has become involved in record reviewing, and the CBC Radio network has a regular weekly program, Records in Review, in which new classical releases are played and commented on by various authorities in the world of music. The programs are heard Sundays at 5:00 p.m.

THE SUN GOES INTO ECLIPSE

beauty. Other fascinating phenomena to be seen are Bailey's Beads (tiny points of light which appear at the beginning and end of the eclipse, caused by the rough outline of the moon), moving bands of light and shade on the ground and on buildings (the result of atmospheric irregularities), and solar prominences (flame-like projections of gas thousands of miles high). Within the umbra, at the moment of eclipse, there will be a sudden darkening when the moon's shadow passes over the earth. The brightest stars will be visible, and, although the landscape will actually be brighter than it is in full moonlight, the sudden change from bright sunlight will probably make it appear pitch black.

The eclipse of the sun has, in past ages, put fear into the hearts of mankind — both in primitive tribes and in cultures that were otherwise fairly advanced. To many, the inexplicable phenomenon was a forecast of terrible events; in Rome, at one time, it was blasphemous to talk publicly of eclipses being due to natural causes; so strong was the superstition that even after the rational explanation of the solar eclipse had been largely accepted, eclipses of the moon were still regarded as being due to supernatural intervention. The Chinese imagined eclipses to be caused by great dragons trying to devour the sun and moon, and they beat drums and brass kettles to terrify the monsters into letting go their prey. Several historical figures are reported to have made good use of their astronomical knowledge. Columbus, for instance, is said to have awed the Carib natives of Jamaica into giving him provisions by accurately predicting eclipses.

It's no wonder that ancient peoples were afraid of eclipses. Were a total eclipse to be sprung upon us enlightened humans today without warning, no doubt we would be struck with terror and assume that the end of the world had come, at the very least. Animals are reportedly disturbed by the event, perhaps because it throws off their built-in time-tables by bringing on night in the middle of the day.

Thousands of observers, both amateur and professional, are expected to crowd vantage points in Eastern Canada (where the most easily accessible areas are located) to view the once-in-a-lifetime event, and even the skies will be comparatively crowded with sightseers. At Acadia National Park in Maine, the best spot in the United States from which to view the eclipse, reservations have been made for space for observers and equipment from many different scientific groups. Since the phenomenon occurs on a Saturday in mid-summer, Park officials are expecting the greatest number of visitors in the Park's history. The same conditions are expected in umbra areas all across the East. At least two groups of professional observers will not have to worry about the crowds on the ground; they will do their viewing from vantage points miles in the air. Two planes are scheduled to race along the path of totality, one carrying a party of Canadian and British scientists, the other a woman astronomer (Dr. Jocelyn R. Gill, of the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration) and an astronaut, one of the original seven of Project Mercury. Their mission is to observe and report on conditions affecting space travel that are impossible to view at any other time. The Canadian plane, a modified Britannia, represents a joint venture of the Dominion Observatory and the RCAF. It will carry scientists from the Observatory, from Oxford University, the National Research Council and from the University of Saskatchewan. The aircraft will make a 13-hour, non-stop return flight from Ottawa to the Great Slave Lake area.

The professional observers will be gathering research data for many different projects. They will note the true nature of the Corona, the emission of electrically-charged particles from the sun, the effect of the reduction of solar radiation on the upper atmosphere, will measure cosmic rays and will attempt to determine the nature of zodiacal light, a glow seen in the sky on moonless nights, rising almost vertically from the horizon. These are, of course, only a few of the research activities made possible by this rare co-operation of the heavenly bodies with science. The observations made during the eclipse will be only the beginning of months of work in the world's observatories and laboratories.

One German astronomer has taken up a post on the shore of Great Slave Lake, where he will take a photograph of a star field near the sun, in a test of Einstein's General Theory of Relativity. The scientist will return next February, take another picture of the same stars from the same spot, and compare the two pictures. If he finds that the stars are displaced by a small amount that corresponds to the predictions of the Theory, (rays of light passing near the sun should be bent, said Einstein), the latter will have received one more piece of experimental confirmation.

In order to enable Canadians from coast to coast to share in the rare and spectacular experience of the eclipse, CBC Television has mounted a major project, involving the co-operation of many different departments, personnel and equipment, to produce a live network telecast of the event. The program is scheduled on Saturday, July 20, with a repeat telecast to be shown Sunday night, July 21.

The area chosen as the origination point of the telecast is Grand' Mere, in the Three Rivers region of Quebec. From that site, a CBC remote-telecast unit will train its cameras on the sky and will follow the progress of the eclipse throughout its 65 seconds of totality. Three cameras will be located at Grand' Mere, a fourth will be set up at Plessisville, Que., 50 miles away, and a fifth will be mounted in an aircraft—a PBY 5A "Canso" flying boat—which will cruise above the clouds, thus assuring a good television picture almost regardless of weather conditions. There is a 60-40 chance of good weather prevailing at the Grand' Mere location, but the pattern of past years indicates a tendency for large thunder clouds to build up in the area during late afternoon. In the event that cloud does obscure the main telecast point, the pick-up can be switched immediately to Plessisville or to the airborne camera. All cameras will be equipped with long focal length lenses and fitted with special filters. CBC engineers have been experimenting with various types of filtering devices to determine which is best suited to give protection with maximum coverage.

The remote unit at Grand' Mere will be under the direction of producer Bill Bolt, and Lister Sinclair will be at the site to give a running commentary on events as they occur. Preceding and following the actual eclipse will be a live program from CBC's Toronto studios, in which host Percy Saltzman will give background information on the phenomenon and will explain just what viewers can expect to see at the moment of totality. The program will also include films showing the preparations made by CBC and by astronomers from around the world in setting up their equipment at Grand' Mere. Program organizer of the project is John Livingston, and the producer is Jim Murray.

For most Canadians, the television coverage will be their only opportunity to view the eclipse; and, according to some authorities, it might be advisable even for those who live in the umbra area to watch the event on television rather than directly. Warnings have already been issued to amateur astronomers to protect their eyes from the sun's direct rays. The International Guild of Dispensing Opticians, to name one source, has warned that smoked glass, cards with pinhole openings, sun-glasses, and even dark photographic negatives are not wholly safe. One method of protection suggested by the Guild would be to use a piece of photographic film or plate that has been specially over-exposed on its entire surface and then developed. This method, however, is perhaps too bothersome to appeal to most amateur observers. The danger of eye damage is serious, and the damage is permanent. In 1959, 170 Australians, most of them school children, suffered partial loss of central vision after watching a solar eclipse without taking proper precautions.

The remainder of the one-hour period Saturday afternoon will be devoted to a film that complements the special program on the eclipse. Entitled The Inquisitive Giant, it is a British Information Services film about astronomy, and deals particularly with the construction of the giant radio telescope at Jodrell Bank in England.

To Say "Good Morning"

Educational programming begins at 9:30 a.m. weekdays next fall on the CBC-TV Network. Familiar afternoon programs will return, as well.

FOR THE FIRST time since CBC Television began operating there will be regular morning network programming starting next October.

National School Telecasts, Chez Helene, Nursery School Time and other educational programs will be telecast in the 10:00 to 11:00 a.m. time period in most localities across Canada.

The in-school instruction on National School Telecasts, prepared by the CBC in co-operation with the National Advisory Council on School Broadcasting, will be presented on Tuesdays and Thursdays in the first half-hour period.

Programming for Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays will consist of other varied educational material, or provincial school telecasts.

Chez Helene, a program of elementary French for pre-school children, and Nursery School Time, will be seen at 10:30 a.m. and 10:45 a.m. respectively, Monday to Friday.

Password, a Monday-to-Friday panel game show originating with the CBS television network, will start off the afternoon network programs. Allen Ludden is host-moderator of Password, which has two celebrity guest panelists and two others each week.

Take Thirty, a half-hour program designed primarily for women viewers, will return with co-hosts Paul Soles and Anna Cameron. Also returning each weekday afternoon will be the young people's favourite, Razzle Dazzle, with Al Hamel, Michele Finney and Howard the Turtle; The Friendly Giant, with Robert Homme, Rusty and Jerome and Misterogers, with puppeteer Fred Rogers.
